Sensitive Subjects

As a partner in the foster care or adoption team, you may find that the special circumstances of the child placed in your home will require that you talk with the child or child welfare workers about what we call “sensitive subjects.” These sensitive subjects concern things about which people don’t often talk about. In foster care and adoption work, these sensitive subjects may be about separation, divorce, death, sexual issues including sexual abuse, mental illness, angry emotions, sad emotions, financial matters, and the use of alcohol or drugs.

Because we are making a very important decision together about your family’s fostering and possibly adopting, we will be discussing subjects that often are not discussed outside the family. We don’t want to offend you or make you feel uncomfortable, but we do need to know in order to help you and us in the decision-making process. With this explanation in mind, then, please answer the questions in the profile as openly and as honestly as you can. Thank you.

Special Projects

Attach any pictures to the back of your profile.

1. Please give us a picture of you and all members of your household (pets, too, if possible). We would like a picture of your house too, so you may want your picture to be in front of your house, or give us a second photo of the house itself. These photos may be used to prepare a child who would come to your family.
2. Scrapbook (optional). Many foster and adoptive families have found another fun way to help prepare a child to move into their homes. The family makes a scrapbook or album with pictures of where family members and the child would sleep, eat, play, etc. Notes here and there might tell what the family does for fun or where the child will go to school. This album can really help you and the child welfare worker make the placement less scary for the child and is helpful for any preplacement visits you may have with the child. Why not start yours today?
